

This year marks the 50th anniversary of Fribourg Intercultural Weeks 2025

To mark this occasion, Com.It.Es.-Freiburg is organising a workshop open to anyone who loves drawing, whether amateurs or professionals, and anyone who wants to learn about the elements of creating humour, satire and entertainment. Or anyone who wants to spend an afternoon creating and sharing smiles with people like us, here, in difficult times.

Humour brings people together

Smiling in difficult times

Registration, admission and participation in the workshop are free of charge

Write to: cultura@comites-freiburg.de indicating your name and surname or nickname and email or postal address (it can also be that of the organisation you belong to) indicating that you intend to participate. As places are limited, please confirm your participation as soon as possible.

Italian humorist Claudio Mellana will lead a workshop on the role of satire, humour and cartoons. In addition, we will work together to create drawings and cartoons inspired by different cultures, with the aim of supporting our common struggle for democracy and participation for all.

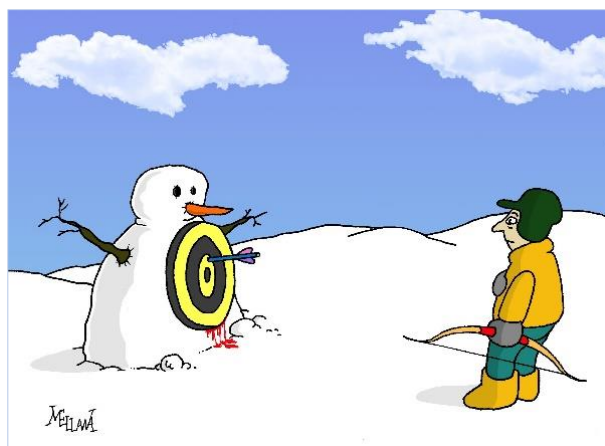

Along with this presentation, you will also find the text, in three languages, describing the spirit that will animate the afternoon workshop. If you need any clarification or explanation, please write to us!

Participants will receive a cartoon by C. Mellana with a dedication and a certificate of participation.

If you have already created drawings, humorous or satirical cartoons, send them to us in PDF or JPEG format by 2 October. We will print them and display them during the workshop and discuss them together.

Associations and organisations participating in this event with their members, authors and illustrators will also receive a free personalised cartoon with a dedication by Claudio Mellana.

Come on, let's all smile together, among us
